Question # 3

Explain me about a time when your design idea clashed with another team members?

Answer:-

I have this happen quite a lot because I tend to think of some really experimental ideas sometimes. But again, I like to take a step back when this happens and just sort've see everything at a bigger picture. Almost like im a third party looking at the ideas. If I sometimes feel the team member has put more time and effort into their idea although I think in my head my idea is better, I'd let my idea go and instead find ways to integrate my idea into their idea. I think partner to partner respect goes a long way.

Question # 14

Tell me what is the core difference between an Interior designer and an Interior Decorator?

Answer:-

We often hear the terms, interior decorator and interior designer and most of us don't know, get to know the main difference between the two sets of people and land up getting all confused. Although there is not much of a difference in the titles, the work is somewhat different.

An interior decorator refers to an individual who deals with all the stuff related to furniture, finishing touches, surface and even wall coverings. The interior decorator can re-do almost all places and there is absolutely no restriction of venues for a decorator for instance right from designing a showroom to changing the look and feel of a retail store also.

On the other hand, the work of an interior designer is a more specific and much more career oriented. This type of work requires a proper formal education, should be backed by a sound work experience, and the individual must have a license to operate. The designer is primarily responsible for creating space inside premises such as in a commercial building, or redoing up the lights of a restaurant, and even helps you in selecting right furnishings for your home or office space, depending on your specific requirements. The work of an interior designer also entails with issues regarding the overall safety of a place, assuring that the accessibility and even building codes.

Question # 28

Explain about a time when a client was upset with a design choice you made. How did you handle the situation?

Answer:-

Corefit was one of my longest projects I had to work on. I worked on just the logo portion for 10 weeks maybe. Close to 10 or even more weekly meetings. I probably brought about 200 ideations in total by the end or more even. A lot of my ideas just weren't going through with them and although by the 7th 8th week I was getting frustrated, I always put up a smile and brought in 10-12 new ideations. Eventually I would go home and make ideations and email them as soon as I made a few getting direct responses for each idea. But I never give up on my clients. If they don't like it, I take it as being my fault for not analyzing and researching my client correctly and I keep bringing new ideas until they like it. Until they are fully satisfied because that's what brings return clients. That's what makes clients refer us to more clients to, that extra mile.

Question # 31

Tell me i am unable to figure out whether I need an interior designer or an architect for my remodeling project, what to do?

Answer:-

This is by far the most common question we have all in minds when we plan to remodel our place. Ideally, an interior designer is fully equipped with all the skills required for drafting new places and comes with the appropriate educational skills which are essential right from designing to drafting new places ad spaces. An interior designer can remodel or even create an existing interior space or add few extra square footage in your home and even suggest you ideas regarding improving the lighting to a home suggest electrical plans, plan the flooring, countertops, work on the paint colors, advise you about the tile, wall and window treatments, and even give you suggestion related to the furnishing, appliances you would need, provide you tips on plumbing s, to name a few.

In case your project is only related to changing the structural load bearing walls, or adding a little bit of square footage, then you would essentially require the help and guidance of an architect and/or structural engineer, as they are more equipped in providing you with drawings related to structural calculations which would be required by your local building department, for ensuring the overall safety and welfare, along with passing the building code inspections

Question # 32

Tell me have you ever had a conflict with your boss or professor? How was it solved?

Answer:-

Do not try to ignore this topic. If you say no, then the interviewer will understand that you are lying. The solution is to state a minor conflict and explain how well you tried to resolve the disagreement. Focus your answer on how you prioritised the problems faced and tried to resolve in each step.

For example: "I've never had any major conflicts in the past. But I have had certain small ones. The main process that I try to follow is that I prioritise the issues faced or the errors that the client sees and try to talk with them. I listen to their suggestions carefully and try to analyse how this problem could be solved."

Question # 35

Tell me what do you love most about being an interior designer?

Answer:-

Actually, I got into this field to become an architect but midway through my education I realized that I loved the interior aspect a lot more than the architectural aspect. I really enjoy designing personalized spaces for people and for brands and not the over encompassing architecture. I enjoy studying people and making designs that reflect what people want specifically. I feel architecture was more about building and efficiency and things like that. Interior is more about the person and the user which is really what I'm into.

Tell me what is an interior design style you dislike?

Answer:-

I've always been a fan of clean, modern interiors. I'm a person of details, I enjoy designs that have perfect dimensions, 0 flaws, very clean, very simple and strong ideas. What I dislike is when there is too much ideas or too much going on. Sometimes post-modern design can be like this. Or if gothic-revival/ victorian-revival is done wrong, I find design gets cluttered and its something I dislike. I also don't like mixing too many styles. Like I'm a fan of modern styles with minor gothic revival details but if yuo add a victorian revival style in there too, I'm not a fan. I think theres too much going on in that case...
