Call Center Representative Job Interview Preparation Guide.

Question # 1

Tell us will you be comfortable working in different shifts?

Answer:-

Yes, I can. I might have difficulties at the beginning, but I am sure that my body will easily adjust to working at odd hours. Staying up throughout the nights is not a problem for me." You can take this as an opportunity to talk about how well suited for the job you are by saying things like-

* I am enthusiastic and energetic about my work.

* I am very proficient and hard working.

* I can work efficiently and with the same amount of zeal and energy at any time in the day.

* I can strive hard to achieve my goals and at the same time manage other aspects of the job.

One thing to keep in mind while praising yourself is to avoid the use of superlatives like 'extremely' hardworking, the 'best' at xyz, the 'most' efficient etcetra. Selling yourself is good, but the subtler the trumpeting, the better it is.

Question # 25

Mention biggest challenge you have faced at work during the last one year?

Answer:-

The purpose of this question is not to know about the challenges you have faced but to see your approach to manage them. Pick up an example of a challenge you faced at work and focus your answer on the steps to take to deal with it. Also, discuss about your learnings in the process.

For e.g. "Recently I was asked to recommend and implement the changes in the way the calls are distributed among my team members at the call centre. My team members were quite used to the way they were working and there was a lot of resistance to the proposed changes. I knew that these changes will improve the performance of the whole team so I discussed them with my manager and team in detail. I tried to win the confidence of the team members and explain them that it will be in the interest of all of us and the call centre if we implemented these changes. As they started seeing my point, it became easier to gain their support and the desired outcome. The result is that the customers get a reply faster and the performance of each team member has improved by more than 50%."
