Question # 2

Can you explain does CIA spy on Americans and Does it keep a file on you?

Answer:-

By law, CIA is specifically prohibited from collecting foreign intelligence concerning the domestic activities of US citizens. Its mission is to collect information related to foreign intelligence and foreign counterintelligence. By direction of the President in Executive Order 12333 of 1981 and in accordance with procedures approved by the Attorney General, CIA is restricted in the collection of intelligence information directed against US citizens.

Collection is allowed only for an authorized intelligence purpose for example, if there is a reason to believe that an individual is involved in espionage or international terrorist activities. CIA's procedures require senior approval for any such collection that is allowed, and, depending on the collection technique employed, the sanction of the Director of National Intelligence and Attorney General may be required. These restrictions on CIA have been in effect since the 1970s.

Question # 3

Tell me what does the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) do?

Answer:-

The Central Intelligence Agency's primary mission is to collect, evaluate, analyze, and disseminate foreign intelligence to assist the president and senior US government policymakers in making decisions relating to the national security. CIA does not make policy; it is an independent source of foreign intelligence information for those who do. CIA may also engage in covert action at the president's direction in accordance with applicable law.

Question # 13

Tell me does CIA release publications to the public?

Answer:-

*Yes. CIA releases millions of pages of documents each year. Much of this is material of historical significance or personal interest that has been declassified under Executive Order 12958 (a presidential order outlining a uniform system for handling national security information) or the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Privacy Act (statutes that give US citizens access to US government information or US government information about themselves, respectively).

*The Agency handles thousands of FOIA cases each year and maintains CIA's FOIA Electronic Reading Room to release this information to the public and to provide guidance for requesting information. Some released information of significant public interest or historical value is also available at the National Archives and Records Administration. Specific copies of any previously declassified records are available directly from CIA's FOIA office.

unlimited budget, which is far from true. While classified, the budget and size of CIA are known in detail and examined by the Office of Management and Budget and by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and the Defense Subcommittees of the Appropriations Committees in both houses of Congress. The resources allocated to CIA are subject to the same rigorous examination and approval process that applies to all other government organizations.

Question # 16

Please tell me how CIA Research Can Help Your Financial Planning?

Answer:-

Sherman Kent was an analyst for the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) who researched the ways people talk about estimations they make. Although his goal was to make better use of military intelligence, his research can be applied to your family's personal financial planning. In fact, you can even use his work to help determine when it's the right time to make an expensive purchase.

By understanding how estimates are framed and discussed, you can make better financial decisions. Estimates may be off because of the interests of the person making the assessment or how the information is presented. For example, people in general are more interested in avoiding losses than making gains.

Question # 17

Please tell me who decides when CIA should participate in covert actions, and why?

Answer:-

Only the President can direct CIA to undertake a covert action. Such actions usually are recommended by the National Security Council (NSC). Covert actions are considered when the NSC judges that US foreign policy objectives may not be fully realized by normal diplomatic means and when military action is deemed to be too extreme an option. Therefore, the Agency may be directed to conduct a special activity abroad in support of foreign policy where the role of the US government is neither apparent nor publicly acknowledged. Once tasked, the intelligence oversight committees of the Congress must be notified.
