Financial Controller Job Interview Preparation Guide.

Question # 1

Tell me about your ability to work under pressure as Financial Controller?

Answer:-

I'd like to think I react to situations as opposed to stress. The reality is, when handled correctly, many problems avoid becoming unnecessarily stressful. Come to think of it, I believe I actually work better under pressure. It helps me produce some of my best work and to be honest I like being challenged. From a stress management point of view, I like to burn off the day with a workout or by going for a run.

Question # 2

What are your salary expectations as Financial Controller?

Answer:-

Many consider this question to be a loaded gun - dangerous in the hands of the inexperienced. Often times, an interviewee will start talking salary before they've had an opportunity to illustrate their skill set and value making any sort of leverage valueless. Here, knowledge is power, as salary often comes down to negotiation. Do some research into your industry to establish base rates of pay based on seniority and demand but keep in mind - your employer is hiring you for what they believe you are worth, and how much benefit they feel you will provide.

One relatively safe approach is simply asking the interviewer about the salary range. If you wish to avoid the question entirely, respond by saying that "money isn't a key factor" and your primary goal is to advance in your career.

Question # 3

Tell me how do you go about persuading others to your point of view?

Answer:-

Finance professionals regularly have to persuade and influence people to accept their services, their expertise and their advice. Determining needs, selecting the most suitable approach and deciding on the right interpersonal style are all factors in successfully influencing others. Support your answer with a recent example.

Question # 4

Explain about a time when you successfully dealt with a difficult and demanding client?

Answer:-

Here the employer is exploring your resilience and ability to persist in the face of a challenge. Setbacks and difficult clients are part of the financial business and you need to demonstrate your ability to deal with this. Provide an example that clearly shows your determination and the interpersonal skills used to reach a positive outcome.

Question # 6

Tell me how does this particular role support you?

Answer:-

It's important to understand where the job you're after is located on the company totem pole, and how your role would be linked to that of the individual you'd be reporting to (who in most cases will also be the person interviewing you).

Your prospective supervisor will in all likelihood have their own ideas about how a new hire will make their job easier, so be sure to ask them directly about how they

Question # 9

As you know our field is changing always. As such, what have you done with regards to personal development when it comes to a HOTEL FINANCIAL CONTROLLER POSITION in the last 12 months?

Answer:-

That is a really great question. While I haven't had the opportunity to develop within this particular role per se, I have actually become very involved in my local foodbank this year. This has taught me a great deal about community, teamwork, and taking initiative.

I took it upon myself to enroll in a summer business admin course at the local community college. Through this, I picked up some really great knowledge on communication and teamwork, as well as further develop overall managerial skills. Though it may not be directly applicable to this particular job, I believe the overall experience I gained could be a real asset here.

Read More Answers.

Question # 29

Tell me what deliverables should I shoot for in the first 30, 60 and 90 days, respectively?

Answer:-

A prospective employer or hiring manager will typically use the interview to give a broad idea both of what the position entails, and of what skills, qualities, and personality they're looking for in a successful candidate.

But interviewers tend to be coy about how precisely a new hire's performance will be evaluated in the early-going - that is, what specific, concrete benchmarks they'll need to reach in order to meet expectations and survive beyond the probationary period.

Question # 30

Tell us I don't expect you to go into too much detail - but why are you leaving your last job?

Answer:-

An innocent question. But a question that if answered improperly, can be a deal breaker. While many individuals will be looking to a new job as a means of increasing their salary, "not being paid well enough at your last job" is not something you want to mention to your interviewer. After all, are you not likely to leave this particular job if you found you could make more down the street?

If you're currently employed and leaving of your own accord, craft your response around enhancing your career development and a seeking out of new challenges.

If your current employer is downsizing, be honest about it, remain positive, but keep it brief. If your employer fired you or let you go for cause, be prepared to give a brief - but honest - reply. No matter how tempting it may be, or how "unfair it was that they let you go" steer clear away from any and all drama and negativity. Any experienced employer understands that sometimes things happen. Staying positive is key here.

Question # 31

Tell me what experience do you have when it comes to discussing our recently posted HOTEL FINANCIAL CONTROLLER position?

Answer:-

Ever since my first paper route at age 10 I've been doing something to keep myself busy and earn money. Back then, it was obviously about earning some spending money. What I didn't realize was that I was actually starting the journey of establishing what I liked to do and how I fit in to the grand scheme of things. I then worked as a junior computer tech in my last 2 summers of high school. It was here that I discovered what I was passionate about and what I wanted to do. I enrolled in college to get my degree in computer sciences, and I have been working around technology ever since.

Question # 32

What Can You Contribute as Financial Controller?

Answer:-

As we have discussed elsewhere, the key to getting a job is not a dry recitation of experiences and accomplishments, but a dynamic demonstration of what you can do for the person and organization with which you are interviewing.

To succeed in marketing yourself, put yourself in the place of the hiring manager. What can you do for them in the future? How can you make their lives easier? How can you make them more successful?

Question # 33

As you know I'm curious - how did you come to find out about our company and what do you know about us?

Answer:-

This can be a great way to stand out from other applicants and demonstrate initiative. Almost every company will have a website, Facebook page, Instagram account, or some sort of digital footprint. Spend a bit of time doing some online research:

* If they have a website, check out their "About us" or "Culture/Mission/Vision" pages.

* Who are some of the principal people who work there? Who are the founders?

* What sorts of things does this company care about? Do they donate to a particular cause or charity? Which one(s)?

* What are their core values? Which of their core values resonate with you?

* Has the company been in the news recently or have they won any awards (Social Media can be a great place to find this information).

Question # 34

Explain me about a recent high stress situation you were in. How did you manage it?

Answer:-

Finance jobs demand the ability to work well under pressure. The interviewer wants to know whether you are able to perform under stress and cope with difficult situations. Show that you can stay calm and are able to plan to reduce stress.

Question # 36

Why Did You Quit a Given Job as Financial Controller?

Answer:-

If the interviewer asks about why you quit a certain job, or why there are gaps in your resume, what should you say? This short video addresses that difficult question. There are many valid reasons that interviewers are unlikely to hold against you in assessing you as a job candidate. However, presenting your reasons awkwardly or unconvincingly definitely is bound to raise questions about you and damage your chances. Be sure that you rehearse your explanations in accordance with these suggestions.

Question # 37

Tell me at the end of the year, what will success in this job look like?

Answer:-

Beyond the preliminary deliverables, it's important to understand what the employer expects from the winning candidate over the longer haul - after their first, full year, for example, once all the attendant kinks have been worked out and the learning curves mastered.

With the employer painting the picture for you, you'll be able to visualize how all your skills and experiences could help you reach that landmark.

Question # 39

What Are Your Salary Requirements and Expectations as Financial Controller?

Answer:-

You want to be paid as much as you can, while the hiring firm wants to get your services for as little as they can. Do not undersell yourself and your abilities, but do not make your demands so high that that you are rejected out of hand as a potential hire if you would settle for less.

Question # 40

What motivates you in your job as Financial Controller?

Answer:-

Finance interview questions that examine your motivation are designed to assess whether you will be a good motivational fit with the job opportunity and the company. Make your motivation relevant to what the finance job provides. Most finance positions require self-motivated people whose motivators include managing a challenge, getting the required results, achievement and recognition.
