Psychiatry Job Interview Preparation Guide.

Question # 1

What is a scientific degree required for entry into pharmaceutical sales? What about prior sales experience?

Answer:-

Successful candidates do not necessarily require either of the above. However, there is a great deal of variation here.

Mostly, it depends on the hiring managers' personal opinion. If she is trying to fill a very competitive territory, she may feel the need to hire a real seasoned "pit-bull" to go out there and grab the business. Or maybe, she has had a problem with a recent hire who has difficulty grasping scientific data and is determined to hire a person with strong science background to add to her team's qualities.

Question # 2

Explain Do you consider yourself to be social? Can you tell us of a time when you used your social skills to help the patients?

Answer:-

A nurse has to be pleasant and lively as well as trained and experienced to look after the patients. A grumpy nurse is every hospital's nightmare, and would not find many options for gainful employment.

Since being pleasant and patient are key responsibilities of a nurse, there will be enough incidents where you have used your social skills to handle a medical situation.

Make sure that you give a truthful and accurate description of the times, so that your interview will also have you come across as a person who has all the required requisites for being good medical personnel.
