Repairman Job Interview Preparation Guide.

Question # 1

Explain sometimes we will be backed up and need someone to stay later, how often do you believe you would be okay staying past 5?

Answer:-

Most days I can stay as late as I need. If I have plans that night you might have to take it up with my wife.

Question # 2

Explain me what is your specialty?

Answer:-

I am well rounded in the automotive industry and love all aspects of being an automotive tech.

Question # 3

Explain me what do you find most challenging while fixing a problem?

Answer:-

Sometimes the customers persist on seeing the whole repair done and they start asking too many questions which makes it difficult to concentrate. I find such situations quite challenging and usually try to minimize the conversation until the problem has been fixed to allow my maximum concentration where it should be.

Question # 4

Explain me about your ability to work under pressure as Repairman?

Answer:-

You may say that you thrive under certain types of pressure. Give an example that relates to the type of position applied for. Mention routine pressure you face, such as dealing with deadlines on a regular basis.

Try not to use an example where you created the pressure yourself, by waiting too long to start something, or by handling a task irresponsibly at the beginning. For example, working under pressure to meet a customer's deadline could be a good example, but not if you had waited too long to start the project.

"Pressure is actually a catalyst to my work. When there is an imperative deadline, I refocus my energy into my work which in fact, has helped me to produce some of my best works. (Give examples) I guess you can say I thrive under pressure."

Question # 5

What are your salary expectations as Repairman?

Answer:-

This question is like a loaded gun, tricky and dangerous if you're not sure what you are doing. It's not uncommon for people to end up talking salary before really selling their skills, but knowledge is power as this is a negotiation after all. Again, this is an area where doing your research will be helpful as you will have an understanding of average salary.

One approach is asking the interviewer about the salary range, but to avoid the question entirely, you can respond that money isn't a key factor and you're goal is to advance in your career. However, if you have a minimum figure in mind and you believe you're able to get it, you may find it worth trying.

Question # 6

Explain me your dream job?

Answer:-

Three words describe how you should answer this question: Relevance, relevance, relevance.

But that doesn't mean you have to make up an answer. You can learn something from every job. You can develop skills in every job. Work backwards: Identify things about the job you're interviewing for that will help you if you do someday land your dream job, and then describe how those things apply to what you hope to someday do.

Question # 7

Explain me what is your leadership style?

Answer:-

This is a tough question to answer without dipping into platitudes. Try sharing leadership examples instead. Say, "The best way for me to answer that is to give you a few examples of leadership challenges I've faced..." and then share situations where you dealt with a problem, motivated a team, worked through a crisis... explain what you did and that will give the interviewer a great sense of how you lead. And, of course, it lets you highlight a few of your successes.

Question # 8

Explain me what do you like to do outside of work?

Answer:-

Many companies feel cultural fit is extremely important and they use outside interests as a way to determine how you will fit into a team. Even so, don't be tempted to fib and claim to enjoy hobbies you don't. Focus on activities that indicate some sort of growth: skills you're trying to learn, goals you're trying to accomplish... weave those in with any personal details. For example, "I'm raising a family so a lot of my time is focused on that, but I'm using my commute time to learn Spanish..."

Question # 9

Tell me what are the company's highest priority goals this year, and how would my role contribute?

Answer:-

Is the job the candidate will fill important? Does that job matter? Great candidates want a job with meaning, with a larger purpose -- and they want to work with people who approach their jobs the same way. Otherwise a job is just a job.

Question # 15

What field experience do you have as Repairman?

Repairman Interview Questions And Answers

Answer:-

Speak about specifics that relate to the position you are applying for. If you do not have specific experience, get as close as you can.

If you are being asked this question from your employer then you can explain your experience. Tell the employer what responsibilities you were performing during your job. You can tell what programs you developed and what modules you worked on. What were your achievements regarding different programs.

I have been working with computers since 2001. I also have a degree in network support/computer repair. I have built my last 3 computers, have work with Dell as an employee. So I have around 15 years experience working with computers.

Question # 16

Explain how did you learn about the opening?

Answer:-

Job boards, general postings, online listings, job fairs... most people find their first few jobs that way, so that's certainly not a red flag.

But a candidate who continues to find each successive job from general postings probably hasn't figured out what he or she wants to do -- and where he or she would like to do it.

He or she is just looking for a job; often, any job.

So don't just explain how you heard about the opening. Show that you heard about the job through a colleague, a current employer, by following the company.... show that you know about the job because you want to work there.

Employers don't want to hire people that just want a job; they want to hire people that want a job with their company.

Question # 17

Please explain how you think other people would describe you?

Answer:-

I hate this question. It's a total throw-away. But I did ask it once, and got an answer I really liked.

"I think people would say that what you see is what you get," she said. "If I say I will do something, I do it. If I say I will help, I help. I'm not sure that everyone likes me but they all know they can count on what I say and how hard I work."

Can't beat that.

Question # 18

Tell me what really drives results in this job?

Answer:-

Employees are investments, and you expect every employee to generate a positive return on his or her salary. (Otherwise why do you have them on the payroll?)

In every job some activities make a bigger difference than others. You need your HR team to fill job openings, but what you really want is for them to find the right candidates, because that results in higher retention rates, lower training costs, and better overall productivity.

You need your service techs to perform effective repairs, but what you really want is for those techs to identify ways to solve problems and provide other benefits -- in short, to build customers relationships and even generate additional sales.

Great candidates want to know what truly makes a difference and drives results, because they know helping the company succeed means they will succeed as well.

Question # 24

Why do you believe we should hire you as Repairman?

Answer:-

This question needs to be carefully answered as it is your opportunity to stick out from the rest of the applicants. You should focus on skills that you have, including those not yet mentioned. Simply responding "because I'm really good" or "I really need a job" isn't going to work. You shouldn't assume the skills of other applicants or their strengths, focus on yourself. Tell the interviewer why you are a good fit for the position, what makes you a good employee, and what you can provide the company. Keep it brief while highlighting achievements.

Question # 25

Why do you want this job as Repairman?

Answer:-

Now go deeper. Don't just talk about why the company would be great to work for; talk about how the position is a perfect fit for what you hope to accomplish, both short-term and long-term.

And if you don't know why the position is a perfect fit... look somewhere else. Life is too short.

Question # 26

Tell me what can we expect from you in your first three months?

Answer:-

Ideally the answer to this should come from the employer: they should have plans and expectations for you.

But if you're asked, use this general framework:

- * You'll work hard to determine how your job creates value -- you won't just stay busy, you'll stay busy doing the right things.
 - * You'll learn how to serve all your constituents -- your boss, your employees, your peers, your customers and suppliers and vendors...
 - * You'll focus on doing what you do best -- you'll be hired because you bring certain skills, and you'll apply those skills to make things happen.
 - * You'll make a difference -- with customers, with other employees, to bring enthusiasm and focus and a sense of commitment and teamwork...
- Then just layer in specifics that are applicable to you and the job.

Question # 27

Please explain about a time you disagreed with a decision. What did you do?

Answer:-

No one agrees with every decision. Disagreements are fine; it's what you do when you disagree that matters. (We all know people who love to have the "meeting after the meeting," where they've supported a decision in the meeting but then go out and undermine it.)

Show that you were professional. Show that you raised your concerns in a productive way. If you have an example that proves you can affect change, great... and if you don't, show that you can support a decision even though you think it was wrong (as long as it's not unethical, immoral, etc.)

Every company wants employees willing to be honest and forthright, to share concerns and issues... but to also get behind a decision and support it as if they agreed, even if they didn't.

Question # 34

Tell me what do you consider to be your biggest weakness as Repairman?

Answer:-

This can be a tricky question to respond to, if you suggest you have no weaknesses you're going to appear as a liar or egotistical. You should respond realistically by mentioning small work related weaknesses. Although many try to answer using a positive skill in disguise as a weakness, like "I expect co-workers to have the same commitment" or "I am a perfectionist". However, it is recommended that there is some honesty and the weaknesses are true, and then emphasize on how you have overcome it or working to improve it. The purpose of this question is to see how you view and evaluate yourself.

Question # 35

Explain me about the last time a co-worker or customer got angry with you. What happened?

Answer:-

Conflict is inevitable when a company works hard to get things done. Mistakes happen. Sure, strengths come to the fore, but weaknesses also rear their heads. And that's OK. No one is perfect.

But a person who tends to push the blame -- and the responsibility for rectifying the situation -- onto someone else is a candidate to avoid. Hiring managers much rather choose candidates who focus not on blame but on addressing and fixing the problem.

Every business needs employees who willingly admit when they are wrong, step up to take ownership for fixing the problem, and, most importantly, learn from the experience.

Question # 36

Tell me a snail is at the bottom of a 30-foot well. Each day he climbs up 3 feet, but at night he slips back 2 feet. How many days will it take him to climb out of the well?

Answer:-

Questions like these have become a lot more popular (thanks Google) in recent years. The interviewer isn't necessarily looking for the right answer but instead a little insight into your reasoning abilities.

All you can do is talk through your logic as you try to solve the problem. Don't be afraid to laugh at yourself if you get it wrong -- sometimes the interviewer is merely trying to assess how you deal with failure.

Question # 37

Suppose you were to rank them, what are the top three traits your top performers have in common?

Answer:-

Great candidates also want to be great employees. They know every organization is different -- and so are the key qualities of top performers in those organizations.

Maybe your top performers work longer hours. Maybe creativity is more important than methodology. Maybe constantly landing new customers in new markets is more important than building long-term customer relationships. Maybe the key is a willingness to spend the same amount of time educating an entry-level customer as helping an enthusiast who wants high-end equipment.

Great candidates want to know, because

- 1) they want to know if they will fit in, and
- 2) if they do fit in, they want to know how they can be a top performer.

Question # 49

What do you see yourself doing in five years as Repairman?

Answer:-

This is another question looking towards job commitment. Some people go through jobs like socks because they don't have a life plan, and your answer can show insight into this. It can also be used for finding out if you are the type that sets goals at all in life, because those that make long-term goals are usually more reliable. Also, your goals can provide insight on your personality too. You should respond with an answer that shows progression in your career is on track with your route in the company. It's important to do your research on company prospects, this way you understand what to expect and if it's in your long-term goal. Interviewers don't want to set you on a path that won't provide the results you want, resulting in you resigning.

Question # 50

Repairman Interview Questions And Answers

Tell me what do you expect me to accomplish in the first 90 days?

Answer:-

If you weren't asked this question, ask if yourself. Why? Great candidates want to hit the ground running. They don't want to spend weeks or months "getting to know the organization." They don't want to spend huge chunks of time in orientation, in training, or in the futile pursuit of getting their feet wet. They want to make a difference -- and they want to make that difference right now.

Read More Answers.

Question # 51

Explain me about the toughest decision you had to make in the last six months?

Answer:-

The goal of this question is to evaluate the candidate's reasoning ability, problem solving skills, judgment, and possibly even willingness to take intelligent risks. Having no answer is a definite warning sign. Everyone makes tough decisions, regardless of their position. My daughter worked part-time as a server at a local restaurant and makes difficult decisions all the time -- like the best way to deal with a regular customer whose behavior constituted borderline harassment. A good answer proves you can make a difficult analytical or reasoning-based decision; for example, wading through reams of data to determine the best solution to a problem.

A great answer proves you can make a difficult interpersonal decision, or better yet a difficult data-driven decision that included interpersonal considerations and ramifications.

Making decisions based on data is important, but almost every decision has an impact on people as well. The best candidates naturally weigh all sides of an issue, not just the business or human side exclusively.

Question # 52

Explain me what kind of work environment do you like best?

Answer:-

Maybe you love working alone... but if the job you're interviewing for is in a call center, that answer will do you no good.

So take a step back and think about the job you're applying for and the company's culture (because every company has one, whether intentional or unintentional.) If a flexible schedule is important to you, but the company doesn't offer one, focus on something else. If you like constant direction and support and the company expects employees to self-manage, focus on something else.

Find ways to highlight how the company's environment will work well for you -- and if you can't find ways, don't take the job, because you'll be miserable.

Question # 53

Explain me what do you consider to be your biggest professional achievement?

Answer:-

Here's an interview question that definitely requires an answer relevant to the job. If you say your biggest achievement was improving throughput by 18% in six months but you're interviewing for a leadership role in human resources... that answer is interesting but ultimately irrelevant.

Instead, talk about an under-performing employee you "rescued," or how you overcame infighting between departments, or how so many of your direct reports have been promoted....

The goal is to share achievements that let the interviewer imagine see you in the position -- and see you succeeding.

Question # 65

Tell me what was the toughest situation you've had fixing a car?

Answer:-

I was replacing the engine in 1986 corvette which was a cut and dry situation so i thought, after removing the original engine i found that a lot of the bolts were not correct and this made the job difficult due to the fact that each one had to be measured and sized for correct fit this job took up a whole week to finish..

Question # 67

Please explain what knowledge do you have about the company?

Answer:-

You should do your research prior to the interview. Look into background history of the company, this will help you stick out. Learn about main people, have they been in the news lately? The interviewer doesn't expect you to know dates and certain people, but showing that you have enough interest to research the company is a positive impression.
